Anti-Insurgent School to Open At Quantico

Special to The Free Lance-Star
QUANTICO—A course in counterinsurgency—dealing with political, psychological, and civic actions open to a government to combat insurgents—will be opened here Monday at the Marine Corps Schools.

The two-week course for senior officers will feature speakers from domestic and allied military branches and federal agencies.

It is partly intended to provide officers with a working knowledge of principles and tactics employed in operations against guerrilla forces.

Military visitor-speakers scheduled to attend include Maj. Gen. V. H. Krulak, USMC, special assistant to the Joint Chiefs of Staff for counterinsurgency; Maj. Gen. R. E. Cushman, USMC, Headquarters Marine Corps; Maj. Gen. W. P. Yarborough, Special Welfare Center, Ft. Bragg, N. C.; Lt. Col. R. G. Jones, Special Warfare-Civil Affairs Division of the U. S. Continental Army Command; and Lt. Col. J. E. Beebe, Psychological Warfare Branch, Ft. Bragg, N. C.

Other speakers include Dr. Roger Hilsman, Director, Intelligence and Research, Dept. of State; Mr. W. G. Stoneman, Agency for International Development, Dept. of State; Mr. J. C. Kitchen, Assistant Secretary for Politico-Military Affairs, Dept. of State; Mr. John Anspacher, U. S. Information Agency; Mr. Henry C. Ramsey, Policy Planning Council, Dept. of State; and Mr. Paul Eckel, Central Intelligence Agency.
